

MIT Parent Leadership Circle

Building a community of inspired and committed MIT parents.

Ian Waitz, vice chancellor for undergraduate and graduate education, welcomed 2019 PLC Family Weekend reception attendees. His remarks were followed by a student panel on experiential learning opportunities moderated by Kate Trimble, senior associate dean and director of the Office of Experiential Learning.

“We are proud to participate in the Parent Leadership Circle, which supports our students and MIT’s mission to create a better world. The PLC connected us to fellow parents and the broader MIT community, and it gave us a window into the work of the Institute and the student experience.”

Nicole and David Gruenstein, P '21

Build. Engage. Impact.

---

The MIT Parent Leadership Circle (PLC) is a group of committed parents who build parent community, engage in opportunities to learn about MIT research and student life, and impact MIT through philanthropy.

As part of the Parent Leadership Circle, you'll not only be supporting the student experience at MIT, you'll be supporting MIT's mission to create a better world.

PLC membership provides parents with deeper connections to the Institute, including:

- Opportunities to engage with MIT faculty, staff, and campus leaders at MIT and PLC events, now held virtually
- Quarterly PLC Newsletter with news and event updates
- A community of like-minded parents to share connection and mission

A Community of Impact.

Through annual giving, PLC parents help support MIT initiatives that are meaningful to their families and align with MIT's purpose to create a better world through education, research, and innovation.

Our mission wouldn't be complete without you. Will you join us?

Parent Leadership Circle annual giving levels:

Builder	$10,000+
Maker	$2,500-$9,999
